DORSET LANDMARKS

Chapman's Pool

Probably one of the best coastal views in Dorset from the cliff top. The cliffs here are clay shale so there is constant erosion and landslip. In consequence access to sea level is not easy, the 350 foot descent is certainly possible in the summer months but in winter is an entirely different proposition. Earlier this year the South West Coast Path has slid into the sea in several places near by, and what remains has been closed as too dangerous to use.

This area of the Dorset coast has a long history of shipwrecks, and in the late 1860's a lifeboat station and slipway was built in the cove. It proved to be a mistake; despite the appearance of being a sheltered haven the cove is at times more dangerous than the surrounding open sea. It operated for about twelve years before the impracticalities of the steep descent, getting the lifeboat out of the cove, and the lack of local village and volunteers led to its closure. The station still exists but is now used as a fisherman's hut.

There is also what is sometimes termed an old lifeboat station about a mile away at St Aldhelm's Head; however at 350 ft above sea level it's stretching credibility a bit far.

Current and archived results, Gas & Air, averages etc., are also published in PDF format on www.dsrpa.co.uk

The DSRPA also organize Gallery/Sport Rifle Leagues. If you're interested ask for your name to be added to the contact list for this discipline.
